

Costantino Colombo, Dean for Student Life

Dear Current Undergraduate Members of Delta Upsilon:

Delta Upsilon International Fraternity's Board of Directors notified MIT that they formally suspended Technology Chapter until spring 2016. As a result, MIT is withdrawing its recognition of Technology Chapter effective immediately.

MIT will, however, support you through this transition, and any DU member is eligible for on-campus housing this fall. The Department of Housing can accommodate anyone who seeks on-campus housing, or can help you find suitable places to live off campus. Please contact Jennifer Hapgood-White to get started.

Per DU International, all current undergraduate members including new initiates are placed on alumni status and may not conduct business, hold recruitment functions, or host events or activities in the name of Delta Upsilon or Technology Chapter. Anyone representing himself as an active DU or Technology Chapter member may be subject to further discipline.

Institutional recognition of an FSILG is a privilege. In addition to sanctions imposed by DU International, benefits corresponding to MIT's recognition of Technology Chapter are rescinded effective immediately. All MIT organizational prerogatives—such as student activities recognition, room reservations, and event approval—are also withdrawn.

This situation is regrettable, particularly for those members who were not part of the actions that led to this outcome. The decisions made by DU International and MIT on this matter may feel like a judgment about the ethics or behavior of each chapter member. Nonetheless, the chapter as a whole is responsible for its actions, and the entire organization must bear the consequences.

Sincerely,

Costantino Colombo
Dean for Student Life
